175th O. Batt. on Their Way

Breezelets

"Venizelos is really king of Greece now," reads a news heading.

What has become of King Constantine's German spouse?

The duties of Greek premiers seems to be to resign and then be ready to come back.

Dispatches now state that the Verdun front has reached a condition of comparative calm.

And very soon we will be able to write the death and burial of the Crown Prince's failure.

Four newspaper men at Winnipeg were put in jail by order of a judge, on a charge for contempt of court.

Meantime the meek are doing time inheriting the earth.

There now appears to be some doubt as to whether the Bremen travels at the rate of 13 knots an hour or just one big Not.

It is said the Germans are now stripping suspected spies and rubbing them with lemons, in order to find maps on their skins.

If the Bremen ever turns up she'll probably want a cargo of lemons for the suffering Fatherland.

We understand that these "tanks" with which the British drive right over trenches and craters do not in the least resemble water wagons.

"Coffee famine is felt by the Germans," says a news heading.

A coffin famine was felt by Germany a long way back. Big dug-outs are used now.

Von Papen, of bombing bridge fame, is fighting on the Somme front.

The dispatches fail to state whether he is with a bomb throwing corps.

The "drive" and the "push" which figures so frequently in war headlines will be shown in a battle formation that all Canadians will enjoy when the hockey games get going presently.

The 175th O. Batt.

NOW ON THEIR WAY

The 175th O. Batt. left Calgary last Tuesday afternoon for their "unknown" destination. It was hoped that they would have gone via Chinook, but instead went by Medicine Hat, where they received their colors.

Perhaps we take more interest in this battalion on account of so many of the men belonging to Chinook and district. In fact, several hundreds have been recruited from along this line. Among those who have gone from us may be mentioned:

Major C. W. Rideout
Lieut. J. A. Sully
Sergt. Warner
Corp. G. McKinney
Orderly Room L. Bethune
Inst. Signaler J. P. Watson
Signaler Gerald Stacey
Bugler Frank Venables
Private Mac McColl (already lost three brothers at the front)
Private R. J. McLean
" Jack McLean
" H. Forbes
" Bob White (has a brother now at front)
" Fulton (of Sedalia)

and several others. As Colonel Nelson Spencer said, just before entraining at Calgary: "We are the 'only' batt. ever recruited in Alberta that has left Calgary and Edmonton out of the running. We secured all our men in the rural districts, and I think when the time comes they will prove their grit."

Chinookers will be more than interested in the career of the 175th batt., because of our close associations with it, and we sincerely hope that all our boys will be spared to return home safe and sound of limb. Rest assured that they will give a good account of themselves, and uphold the glorious traditions of the British race, and fully keep up the splendid record made by their brave and patriotic comrades who have made the name of Canada immortal and their deeds of valor and endurance will live in the annals of history for all time.

Good-bye, 175th!

It is announced that the number of prisoners taken by the Anglo-French forces on the Somme from July 1 to September 16 aggregates more than 55,800. Of these 34,050 fell into the hands of the French.

Hospital for Chinook

TWO SCHEMES UNDER CONSIDERATION

For several months the Chinook board of trade has been endeavoring to get a hospital located in Chinook, and it looks as though their efforts will be crowned with success. The board has had under their consideration two different schemes—one under the Victorian Order of Nurses, and the other a municipal hospital.

The first of these two schemes has been offered to the village, which may probably be the one accepted.

Last week, Miss Mackenzie, head of the Victorian Order of Nurses at Ottawa, met a large number of the ladies of the village and vicinity, besides a deputation from the board of trade, Messrs. Stephenson and Dilks being their spokesmen.

Miss Mackenzie explained the conditions under which a Victorian Order of Nurses' hospital could be established in Chinook, and so hopeful was she of one being erected here, that she informed her hearers she had selected a very suitable nurse to begin with.

After some conversation it was decided to go on with the scheme and a committee of three ladies, consisting of Mrs. A. H. Peck, Mrs. J. R. Miller and Mrs. A. George; also three members of the board of trade, to take the matter up with the village council and adjoining municipalities to ascertain what support can be obtained towards the object.

This committee waited upon the village council Friday, and a resolution was passed by the council: "That we co-operated with the board of trade and the ladies in connection with their scheme in building a Victorian Order of Nurses' hospital for Chinook, in every way possible."

We purpose publishing from week to week extracts from the Victorian Order of Nurses' rules and regulations so that the public can be properly educated along these lines and have a concise idea of what it means to have such a hospital in Chinook, and which will mean so much for the village.

World would be full of a lot more domestic happiness if wives were considered more of a necessity than a mere convenience.

Lyman C. McColl

THIRD BROTHER KILLED IN ACTION

It is with great regret that we have to announce the death of Lyman C. McColl, the third brother of J. A. McColl, M.P.P., who has made the supreme sacrifice for his country and the empire.

The late Lyman C. McColl was the third son in the family to join the colors—the only son left with the widowed mother at Ottawa. He signed up with the 80th batt., but was later transferred to the 78th batt. Soon after arriving in England he was sent to France and soon in the trenches and saw some service. He was killed in action while working with a trench mortar. Full particulars are not yet to hand.

This is the third brother in the family that has laid down his life for the principles we hold so dear. This is real sacrifice—sacrifice that very few families in Canada are called upon to make—all honor to such a noble sacrifice.

The greatest sympathy of a wide circle of friends is felt for the bereaved family.

A fourth brother, Mac, is with the 175th O. Batt., which will soon be in England. All will hope that our Mac will be spared to return home safely.

Hospital Needed

A VERY SAD CASE

A very sad death took place at Coltholme on Friday of last week when Mrs. Broston, a widow, suddenly passed away. The deceased had been a great sufferer from heart trouble, which proved fatal as above stated. At the time of her death she was alone with her young children, who are now left orphans. The deceased greatly needed help and proper attention which could not be rendered, and consequently had to get about and attend to her children, when she should have been in bed, and while she was about her duties the messenger of death came suddenly. This is a case where a hospital in Chinook would have been a great blessing, and, perhaps, might have been the means of saving a life and prevented the making of a family of little orphan children.

They say a watched kettle never boils but the Balkans keep on boiling though they have been watched unceasingly.

An Anomaly

CARPATHIA'S POSITION RE CONSOLIDATION VOTE

The result of the voting in the Carpathia school district for consolidation with the Chinook consolidated district, places Carpathia in a very anomalous position. It seems that previous to the voting the years had written to the Education Dept. at Edmonton, asking if women would be allowed to vote. The reply was in the negative, and that the voting would have to be carried on as heretofore, as provided in the school ordinance. On the other hand, the nays had written to the Attorney-General's Dept., asking the same question. The reply was in the affirmative, and that they had this right under the new women's suffrage act. On the day of the voting the nays brought with them two women voters who voted under a strong protest from the yeas. At the close of the poll it was found that the men's votes were a tie, and the chairman gave his casting vote in favor of consolidation. And here's where the trouble begins. The two women had voted against it, thus defeating consolidation. Now the question comes where the women entitled vote? If they were, then those on the other side should be accorded the privilege. If not, their votes should not count. Or a new voting take place, if women are to be allowed to vote. It will be interesting to watch how this tangle will be straightened out by the authorities at Edmonton.

Death of John Blair

AFTER A LINGERING ILLNESS

Some two or three weeks ago we announced in these columns the serious illness of Mr. John Blair of Sedalia, from cancer. We regret to learn that after intense suffering, his illness terminated fatally on Friday of last week. The deceased, who was highly respected, had been a great sufferer from that fatal malady, but was borne with great patience and christian fortitude, and was ready when the call came. Interment took place in Cop Hill burying grounds. The bereaved ones have sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

A Legal Case

OF LOCAL INTEREST

A case of some local interest was heard before Magistrates Hewitt and Stephenson, in town, this week. We mentioned last week that the Ontario and Western Canada Cattle Co., Limited, a local concern, had been selling stock without first obtaining the permission of the Public Utility Commission. After hearing the evidence, the court, in consideration that the act complained of was purely a technical one, and the new law was but some three months old, and little known, and the company had done everything possible to undo their mistake, took a lenient view of the case, and imposed a nominal fine of $2.00 and $5.75 costs on each of the three provisional directors and the company $15 and costs. It seems that quite a number of new chartered companies have made the same error, one being at Youngstown, which will likely have to face the music, as the government is after them all.

Some Oyenites

WHO PAID MORE THAN THE PRICE OF A LEMON

Calgary Herald: Inspector Hodgins and his associate detectives of the provincial department have returned from a little sortie on Oyen, where they made some money for the province. One keeper of a gambling house was fined $25 and costs, while six frequenters each paid $20 and costs. Five violators of the liquor act each paid $50 and costs.

The new Canadian war loan has been doubly subscribed. A hundred million dollars was asked for, and over two hundred million dollars has been subscribed.

Some time ago Margrath town council took over an 8-acre tract of ground for taxes. This year they were unable to sell it. They seeded it to wheat and reaped 45 bushels to the acre from it, making money on the deal over taxes and expenses.

Race and Geography

SYMPATHIES AND ANTIPATHIES SHOULD BE CONSIDERED

The rush of the Rumanians are making into Transylvania is swift. If it is also as strong as it look, and as well sustained, they will have taken possession of this coveted territory before long. They are welcomed there by several hundred thousand people of their own blood and language, who will be glad to join them in fighting the Austria-Hungarians. The former effort to make over all this region into divisions which correspond with political ends instead of allowing them to adjust themselves according to race relationships and geographical convenience, is being spoiled now. People are getting a chance to get together with those of their own blood and sympathy. When the time comes for treaty making and the re-establishment of boundary lines, it is to be hoped that due attention will be paid to the only true basis on which permanence can be established, that the territorial divisions will recognize the natural sympathies and antipathies of the people. This as true in Poland and between France and Germany as in the Balkans. Germany annexed Alsace and Lorraine but she never conquered French spirit sympathies. But politics will continue to prevail, probably

LADY URSULA'S HUSBAND

FLORENCE WARDEN

CHAPTER XV.

There was a long silence between husband and wife when these words had fallen from Lady Ursula's lips. Just for one moment he looked at her as if he meant to deny, to postulate, to utter the usual lies which came so readily to his lips. But one glance at her noble countenance, grave, dignified, yet sorrowful and even at that supreme crisis almost tender, caused him to change his mind.

He shrugged his shoulders and decided to make light of the matter. "Well, what of it?"

She did not answer at once. The thoughts which chased each other rapidly through her mind were so poignant that she was not readily fitted to express them.

"Oh, Paul!" she ejaculated at last, under her breath.

And then she choked back a rising sob and turned away towards the door without another word.

After a moment's consideration he followed her, and when she had gone a few steps along the passage which led to the great hall of the house, she felt his hand passed carelessly through her arm.

"Ursula," he whispered, in that coaxing sympathetic voice which few people could ever resist, "I want to talk to you. Come in here."

They were passing the open door of the library, and looking in, Paul saw that it was deserted. Indeed, nobody ever went into the library at Oak Court, except to smoke. It was the sort of house where you find six packs of cards to one book, and the condition of the rows of dining vol-umes suggested that they had been bought with the furniture.

Lady Ursula opened with that air of womanly dignity which made her obedience as majestic as it was gracious. She walked in, and she placed while her husband was shutting the door, and when he came up to her, her lips were moving slightly and her eyes were closed.

"Look here," he said, "I'm at a disadvantage. Then he spoke with some slight show of irritation.

"What has she been telling you about me?"

Lady Ursula looked up at him with a world of sadness and something also of fear in her blue eyes. He felt that he had lost his wife, and that there was less of tenderness and more of judgment in her expression than he was accustomed to see there.

But that was, after all, inevitable, after the discovery which she had made. He must make a bold thing to get rid of the creature which he saw behind her calm attitude. He realized vaguely that the affection of this noble woman, which he had never altogether despised, but which, nevertheless, he had been far from appreciating at its true value, began to fade before the idea of which he had been so suddenly thrown upon his object.

"All that Lady Creslow told me," answered she, gently, "she said before she knew anything. I had no idea of the creature which she was, when she saw you from the window, and you saw her."

"Well, well, then I hope there's no harm done."

Lady Ursula said nothing, and Paul poked her leg vigorously. Then, growing uneasy, he again turned to her, and he turned to her with a frown.

"Come," said he, "what did she tell you?"

Lady Ursula clasped her hands and kept her eyes down as she answered in a low voice—

"I can't repeat it. And what would be the use? You know she told me only the truth, and that it was dreadful, terrible for me to hear."

"She said that I was extravagant; that I was kept without money; in the silly idea that I was a miser, would make me economical. Of course it didn't. Instead, it drove me to use any means that came to hand."

Lady Ursula stretched out her hand to stop him.

"Don't! I know, I know," said she in a hoarse whisper.

"She told you that I forged my father's name."

"Don't, don't!"

"That I did other things that are not usually done by women of my position. Well, I admit it. I don't even ask for consideration for the fact that I was young, very young, when I was hardly used. You, who see my mother now—when she is growing old, when she has softened a little—can have no idea how harsh she could be when she was younger. I don't attempt to excuse myself; I know I resented being harshly treated, and I showed my resentment in ways that you could not approve. All I say is that I was young, very young, and I never made any attempt to see any of my people; on the contrary, I have avoided them. If my mother says I have made any appeals to her she is lying to you."

"She never said so. She told me about her son's ways was all," said Lady Ursula gently.

"And she cannot forgive. Well, which side do you take? That of the mother who can't forgive, or that of the son, who is made to pay for his youthful folly in a banishment which is meant to last for his life?"

She looked up at him for the first time, and he saw that her eyes were moist.

"Don't you think, Paul, that you ought to have told me everything before you married me?" she asked, avoiding the challenge.

He hesitated. He was touched by the gentleness with which she had listened, and with which she answered him. He felt more strongly than he would have believed possible that he was anxious for this sweet-natured noble woman to think the best she could of him. In the old days he had held feminine nobility and dignity very lightly; he had been allured by physical gifts, and had frequented such society as was calculated to enhance his opinion of the sex.

Now for the first time in all his life he was feeling something which had begun by boring him. In marrying Lady Ursula, he had caught at a good opportunity of regaining a footing in the ranks of good society, by a lucky marriage into a family which lived in such a restricted circle.

Proposals for Peace

Germany Must Accept, Not Impose, Terms of Peace

What may be fairly regarded as the latest German official suggestion of peace terms are to be found in an article by Professor Hugo Münsterberg in the magazine section of the New York Times. The professor is a German by birth, and since the outbreak of the war, he has frequently figured as the philosophic champion of the Teutonic point of view. It is not, therefore, stretching credulity too far to regard his writings as having some touch of inspiration from Berlin. What, then, are the terms which in his opinion Germany would accept?

Germany, he says, will not demand a square foot of the conquered territory in France or Belgium. She will accept surrender. Kiao-Chiao to Japan and Southwest Africa to Great Britain. In return she would expect to receive Courland from Russia and some African colonies from France, Belgium and Portugal. Poland may be made a kingdom again and connected with Russia.

Professor Münsterberg would go to Rumania, which would be compensated by being given all of Persia and perhaps Afghanistan.

Best Roads in the World

Value of Good Roads to a Farming Community Is Shown in France

In France, where they have the best roads of any country in the world, the highways are divided into several classes, but all of them are supervised by the national government and inspectors who are employed in this task. This method of building and maintaining roads in France was started by the first Napoleon, who appears to have been the first European statesman who clearly saw the economic advantage of proper highways, and who at the same time had the power to carry out what he wished. The effect of these good roads in France has been wonderful. They have brought all of the various parts of the country nearer together; they have made country life less onerous, and they have reduced the cost of transportation of country produce to a minimum.

On an average, the farm products of this country are carried to market by wagon, miles or more. There is no room for saving in this wagon haul than in a railroad haul of one thousand miles. The railroads of the country charge only eight-tenths of a cent for hauling a ton a mile.

Capturing a Mine Layer

How a German Mine-Layer Was Taken by the British

British papers just to hand give details of the capture of the U-C-5, the German submarine mine layer, now on view on the Thames.

In April last a torpedo-boat destroyer was out exercising off the east coast. When she sighted the enemy she was in difficulties, and from the deck of the destroyer, then some distance away, a flag could be seen at the masthead of the submarine, and in the mist it was at first taken to be the Union Jack.

Closer inspection proved it to be the German naval ensign, and then it was noticed that the whole of the crew of the submarine appeared to be on deck. The comic side of the situation was not lost on the men of the destroyer, and some apprised the enemy character of the distressed vessel they set to work to make a submarine war.

The commander hailed the crew with a brusque invitation to surrender. The crew, who were armed with guns trained on them, and they hauled down their flag and put their hands up, and their heads in the air, and they were taken to the ship.

Russian Flyers Drop

Huge Bombs

New System of Air Tactics Adopted for Russian Aeroplanes

A new system of air tactics has been worked out for Russian biplanes. The giant Ilya Morozovs, the aeroplane in question, has at last come into its own.

As a result of an improvement in pilot technique, the airman even when travelling at full speed can drop bombs with amazing accuracy. This solves the problem of bombing trenches. Manned by four men, the Ilya Morozovs can carry bombs nearly as heavy and deadly as the Krupp 42-centimetre mortars can shoot. They drop these bombs, it is claimed, more accurately than the Krupp shells, and they are infinitely more mobile. High spots of flame can be seen rising from the enemy's lines, and the explosion are so terrific that when the enemy trenches are close Russians have to crouch and stop their ears against the effects of the concussion.

Good Farm Machinery

Arguments Show Direct Benefits From Use of Improved Machines

The following ten arguments show the effects resulting from the use of improved farm machinery:

1. The reduction of human labor by increasing the number of horses, one man being able to do more with a large machine using more horses than was possible years ago when smaller machinery was used and hand labor resorted to.

2. Reducing cost of production. By reducing the labor and permitting the handling of larger areas and more products in the same time, the result is the lower cost per unit of production.

3. Increases the acre effectiveness of the man.

4. Decreases number of farm laborers. This factor is very important in that labor is becoming more scarce every year, is higher priced, and the problem of caring for these laborers is also an important consideration in the states where they are used.

5. Decreases the producing element.

6. Increases total crop production by increasing the acreage per farmer.

7. Decreases acre production. We find that the greatest decrease in production is in the states where machinery is used mostly. This factor is not very important as it seems to hold true mostly in the states where diversified farming is not carried on, but the single crop system is followed, and the farmer is in the wheelbarrow of the Northwest.

8. Delays divisions into small farms until decrease in crop production brings gross income down to cost production. We will then have greater intensity. The principle of supplying demand with the least favorable conditions prevail. This last factor is by no means the least important. It is always to the advantage of a farmer to do as much of his work as possible when the conditions are just right.

How to Drink Milk

Sip milk slowly. Take four minutes at least to finish a tumblerful, and take only a good teaspoonful at one sip. This is the ideal way in which to drink milk. When milk finds its way into the stomach, it is instantly curdled and is in a large quantity at once it is curdled into one big mass, only on the outside of which the juices of the stomach can work.

If you drink it in little sips, each sip is curdled up by itself, and the whole glassful of milk is in a loose lump, made up of little lumps, upon which the stomach's juices can act readily. Many people who like to milk, and know its value as a strength-giver, think they cannot use it because it gives them indigestion. Most of them could use it freely if they would drink it in the manner suggested.

The Only Peace Possible

When Germany Has Sacrificed Its Dream of Universal Domination

Today the only peace possible is with a Germany living in accordance with the dream of universal domination and having declared willingness to conquer with the sword the society of nations. When the German people, either with or without its present government, comes to adopt this view, then the possibility of coming to an agreement will exist. The peace will impose itself unbidden by any criminal intent. It is the kind of peace which Vandervelde spoke recently in the name of the Belgian people. It is this kind of peace which the French Socialist party has not ceased to outline. It is this kind of peace which France and her allies intend to secure — a peace which has already been indicated with increasing clearness by several of the allied governments, notably that of Great Britain — L'Huimant, Paris.

Preservation of Fences

An experiment covering twenty years to determine the value of post treatment was recently completed. The posts were treated by the following methods:

1. By charring.
2. By filling rock around the post with concrete.
3. Putting on the preservation with a brush.

4. By the open tank method of treatment, which consisted in keeping the post and treating fluid heated up to the boiling point for two to three hours, then letting them cool down in the fluid.

The conclusions reached are as follows:
1. That charring the parts placed under ground does not add to their durability.

2. That filling in around the post with stone or bricks does not increase the durability.

3. That concrete is a better preservative than coal tar or petroleum.

4. That brush treatment is not nearly as effective as open tank treatment.

5. That cheap woods like cottonwood, when treated by the open tank method, are cheaper and just as durable as the high-priced cedar posts.

Discoverer's Reward

Long had he worshipped her at a distance, but his shy presence prevented him from coming closer.

Then, one evening, for the sweet sake of charity, a theatrical performer, who had been in the theatre for many years, was leading lady and more adorable than ever. Afterward the shy admirer drew near, his love for the radiant by the sight of her beauty.

"You are the star of the evening," he said as they stood alone in a corner.

"You are the first one to tell me so," said the damsel, with a happy smile.

"Then," he retorted promptly, "may I claim my reward as an astronomer?"

The lady looked puzzled.

"What reward?" she asked.

"Why, the right to give my name to the star I have discovered," said the young man, speaking boldly at last, and successfully.

Dynamiting Mosquitoes

Dynamiting stagnant water holes is the new remedy discovered by city of West Haddonfield, N.J., for the wiping out of mosquito-breeding places.

For years past a number of pools between the railroad and Haddon avenue have furnished a bountiful crop of the big "skeeters."

These stagnant lagoons could not be drained into the city sewerage because they lay lower than the sewers, and even if drained, would fill again with the first rain.

Someone suggested dynamiting the holes, and an expert was sent for. He drilled holes twenty feet deep in the centre of each pool, then dropped a heavy charge of dynamite into some of them. The result was the destruction of veins of clay or rock water soon disappeared into the earth.

The holes are now dry spots and the supply of mosquitoes has considerably diminished in the neighborhood.—Philadelphia North American News.

AN ANXIOUS TIME FOR ALL PARENTS

Children Often Seem to Pine Away and Ordinary Medicine Does Not Help Them

The health of children between the ages of twelve and eighteen years, particularly in the case of girls, is a source of serious worry to nearly every mother. The growth and development takes so much of their strength that in many cases they actually seem to be going into a decline. The appetite is feeble, brightness gives way to depression, there are headaches, fits of dizziness, palpitation of the heart at the least exertion, and sometimes fainting. The blood has become thin and watery and the sufferer must have something that will get the blood back to its normal condition. At this stage no other medicine can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills are made to make new, rich blood which reaches every part of the body, bringing back health, strength and energy.

Miss Helen Taylor, West Toronto, says: "Two years ago I was so badly run down with anaemia that even my friends did not believe I would get better. I could not go upstairs without stopping to rest, suffered from headaches, loss of appetite, and for two months of the time was confined to the house. I was under the care of a doctor, but the medicine I took did not help me in the least. A friend advised my mother to give me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after taking a few of them they would help me after the doctor's medicine had failed. I thought they might be worth trying. After taking two boxes there was such a marked change for the better that people asked me if I had changed doctors. I really felt that the medicine that was helping me, continued taking the pills until I had used three boxes, when my health was fully restored, and I have since enjoyed the best of health. I hope my experience may be of some benefit to some sickly person that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can restore them to health."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50. Write to Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Defrauding the Farmers

Farmers Victimized Through Dealing With Fakirs

During the last outbreak of foot and mouth disease, a trading on the name of a fake fakir, was a consideration he could keep the state authorities from taking their cattle. He fought the law for more than a year, but recently a judge and jury found him guilty of false pretense.

During the trial it was disclosed that the fake fakir had collected more than $9,000 from his victims, and that he had not counted would carry the total to $20,000.

In the case, an ancient veterinary with an "infallible" cure examined cattle with an old glove, rubbing it on the legs and nostrils and gathering germs, which he distributed wholesale. The amount of mischief he did was incalculable.

At the same time he collected tribute for his stupendous ignorance. These two fakirs for a time baffled the officials, and their lies spread contagion over many miles, caused losses that ran into thousands of dollars, and in addition swindled their victims.

It ought to be a lesson. In any matter of health or communication the only course is to get the facts and to invite the help of the officers, whether they be local, state, or national. Do not know and do not report what they know enough to be useful.—Country Gentleman.

A Profitable Mystery

"How did you leave all the folks at home?"

"Fire safe," replied Senator Surghun. "I told them I was going to see if I couldn't straighten out a few problems for the government, but they thought I had died."

"Oh, nothing in particular. I never go into details with my constituents. If you get to know things, you are liable to make them sound so easy that the voters get to thinking they don't need you."

Canada's Example

The Dominion, even less military than ourselves, and without the pretentious permanent efficiency claimed by Washington bureaucrats, adopted a business-like method of transportation for troops.

The Government simply included in the contract for troop transportation the men could sleep in comfort, instead of the three-to-two-seats-in-day-coaches methods on this side, but by the contract were bound to furnish the travelling troops with three hot meals a day. And the men got them. Why could we not do this in this country? A great deal was heard of the mobilization of the railroads to help the army.

If the job had been left to the railroads, as in Canada, it might have been accomplished with more credit to the Government and more comfort to the soldiers.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

"Look at 'em!" exclaimed the burglar.

"Look at what?" asked the pocket-bite snatcher.

"These black an' white stripes that's all the style! I kin remember when they put 'em on us, we were we was disgraced!" Washington Star.

The German Character

Henry Ward Beecher Knew Germany as a Nation of Hypocrites More Than Forty Years Ago

More than forty years ago Henry Ward Beecher wrote Germany down as a nation of hypocrites. In the light of German lies and deceit in the last war, what the great preacher said in 1873 can be keenly appreciated now.

"It is wonderful what bad neighbors poor Germany seems to have. There is that great hectoring Belgium trying to pick a quarrel with her. There is France, recovering from her great defeat with a rapidity which shows very little consideration for Germany's feelings. Austria, too, retains her sovereignty over twelve million subjects of German race, which, of course, is exasperating to the German empire. And don't Holland and Denmark persist in holding on to their nice bits of sea-coast with their obstinate clinging as Naboth's of old? And isn't there the Pope, who, as everyone knows, has countless armies at his back ready to march into Berlin? It really looks as if poor Germany might feel obliged to go to war with somebody, just to let her peace."

Henry Ward Beecher, the unsympathetic, persistent in thinking that there is a Europe of peace, it will probably be because Germany—the doubly of soldiers who rule Germany—chooses it!—Ottawa Journal.

"It's a Great Shame"

One of the ladies of the Post Office Department recently approached the head of her bureau and asked in tones of noticeable indignation, "Is it true, Mr. Smith, that the Department publishes a book in which all our ages are shown?"

Representing an inclination to reply that only one age might be shown, she said, "I don't care," she burst out, "it's very wrong, and I'm very sorry to hear of it. It's a great shame," and so on. Eventually, however, she calmed down and said, "Well, of course, I know you're right, Mr. Smith, and then, 'Would you mind telling me how old Miss So-and-so is?'—St. Martins Le Grand Magazine.

Sandy was walking along the road in deep thought, and it was his minister who brought him to earth again with—"Halloo, Sandy! Thinking of a bawbee?"

Liver Chill Very Common

In Northern latitudes also the liver is a very untruly organ and requires a great deal of care. In the concentrated vegetable juices in Dr. Hamilton's Pills act directly upon the liver and stimulate its action to a normal state.

Now, boys, which dog would you like to own—Henry's or William's?"

The answer came instantly, in one eager shout, "William's!"—Everybody's Magazine.

Maddening Calendar

Turkish System of Keeping Account in the East Leads to Many Difficulties

The Turks count their day from one sunset to the next sunset, dividing the twenty-four hours into twelve as we do. This is plain sailing, but unfortunately sunset does not fall at the same hour day after day, and there ensues horrible complications to the innocent European.

By way presumably of jest the Turkish steamers follow Turkish time, and their railways Frankish time. The rich have watches specially constructed with two dials, one showing each time.

Apparently some enterprising Ottoman thought that the Turkish calendar, with its dual side of counting, and kindly invented a new complication. The Mohammedan year dates from the flight of the prophet in the seventh century. Each year the first month, Muharram, comes eleven days earlier, so the months do not coincide in the reckoning.

There is one more section for the benefit of the Turkish peasant, who is a rural creature having nothing of months. Few him the year is composed of two seasons—hidra, beginning on May 6, and kassin, beginning Nov. 2—running from April 20 to the one hundred and sixty-fourth day of kassin.

Contingencies

Now to a German people who would drive the Hohenzollerns from the throne, how warm would be the handclasp the democratic people of the world!

But if the German people keep the throne, and worship them as gods, it will be necessary, of course, to keep our powder dry.—Winnipeg Free Press.

India is Helping

Men and Money Continue to Be Forthcoming to Assist Britain in Struggle

An official despatch from Simla, India, says:

"Interest in the war grows keener with each success of the allies, and strenuous efforts to assist towards final victory continue unabated."

The people of Bengal organized a stationary field hospital for service in Mesopotamia. This hospital, with the exception of the officer commanding, was staffed entirely by Bengali medical graduates and the personnel was entirely Bengali. Further scope for the national and patriotic aspirations of the Bengalis has been afforded by the raising of a double company of these men to be trained on the frontier, and when fit for service, sent to the front for active operations. Besides the Bengalis, three recently formed companies of Indian Christians recruited from the Punjab have been raised and are doing well.

No less than six Indian officers and soldiers have now earned the Victoria Cross and 27 have gained the military cross.

Relations between the Government of India and the Ameer of Afghanistan continue to be of the friendliest character, and the latter is scrupulously maintaining an attitude of neutrality which he promised at the beginning of the war.

The northwest frontier, partly owing to the Ameer's friendly attitude, partly to the punishment inflicted on lawless tribes, and partly to the exposure of German attempts to introduce the religious element in the war, is enjoying an unprecedented peace. The Afghans, the strongest and most important tribe, have remained staunch throughout their engagements, thereby setting an example of loyalty to their neighbors. The only troublesome factor is the Mahi Sudds, a tribe of hereditary robbers and raiders. Otherwise the rest of the frontier is quiet, or rather it has been for many years.

Process of Making Tapioca

The origin of tapioca which is becoming an important staple food, the demands is probably the least known of any article on the market. It is manufactured from tapioca flour, the Maize Sudds, a tribe of hereditary robbers and raiders. Otherwise the rest of the frontier is quiet, or rather it has been for many years.

France Honors Soldier

Pays Tribute to the First Frenchman to Die in War

France paused August 2, 1916, in tribute to the memory of Corporal Jules-Andre Peugeot, the first Frenchman killed in the present war.

It was at Jochery on the upper Rhine, at 10 o'clock on August 2, 1914, about 24 hours before the war actually was declared between Germany and France, that the name of Peugeot was shot to death by Lieutenant Mayer, at the head of a German patrol squad.

A national subscription is being collected under the patronage of the minister of war and the minister of public instruction for the erection of a monument to Corporal Jules-Andre Peugeot on the spot where he fell.

It is proposed that the name and heroic acts of Peugeot pass down in history as have those of Marcellus Logis Fagner, the first victim of the war of 1870, who was killed at Niederbrunn.

Peugeot, 21, was a corporal in the 6th Company of the 44th Regiment of Infantry. Early in August he was stationed at Jochery, two kilometers from Delle and 12 kilometers from the German frontier.

On the morning of August 2, he had just finished placing a sentinal post in front of the house of M. Daucourt, when the latter's little daughter came running in crying:

"Rushing out, Corporal Peugeot found himself facing a mounted German patrol of seven men under the command of Lieutenant Mayer, of the 5th Regiment of Chasseurs stationed at Mulhouse."

Peugeot gave the order to halt, to which Mayer replied by drawing his revolver and firing three shots into the body of the Frenchman. The latter fell to his knees, discharging his gun before he could take aim.

By this time a few of Peugeot's men had gathered round him, of whom named Monnier, killed Lieutenant Mayer with two shots from his rifle. The Frenchman was then captured in by some French dragons who had come up at the sound of the firing, all of the Germans were killed, with the exception of one who escaped.

Even the Medical Men Endorse It

At a meeting of the Alberta Medical association held in Calgary last week, a resolution was passed endorsing the movement for greater hospital accommodation in country districts. This should be a good boost for the Chinook hospital, when even the medical men themselves are advocating the country hospitals.

Got Their Goats, Alright

It is rumored that fearing conscription some of Chinook's braves have skidded across the line. But suppose Uncle Sam should pass a conscription scheme—which it has been hinted at, for Uncle isn't out of the range of war possibilities with Germany yet, particularly should Teddy have any say—where would these Chinookers fly to next?

Where's the Chinook Hospital?

We are sorry to learn that Mr. Joe Deman found it necessary to go to the Holy Cross hospital, Calgary, this morning for appendicitis. For some time Joe has felt the symptoms, which have gradually grown worse, and consequently decided to have it seen to before it got too late. His brother Frank went with him to Calgary.
